NEW JERSEY.

JERSEY CITY, Nov. 6.—No complete returns from Hudson county have been received. The incomplete returns show gains for Abbett over his vote of 1883, and he will undoubtedly carry the county by 8,000 to 10,000 majority. The Democrats will control the board 7 of freeholders. They also elect state senator, Hackensack—Zimmerman and Derande, Democrats, for assembly, and Winter, Democrat, for Senate, are probably elected in this county.

Camden-Returns from Camden county are coming in slowly. Gen. Grubb will have a majority approximating 2,500. Newark-Returns received from Hudson, Passaic and most of the southern counties show that Abbett for governor has carried the state. The Democrats in Essex county, it is estimated, have elected six of the ten assemblymen. Camden-Cumberland county gives

Grubb for governor 1,024 majority. Burlington county gives Grubb 1,500 majority. Lakewood-So far the returns from Ocean county show Republican majorities as follows: Grubb, for governor, 550: Cranmer, for senator 470; Ernst, for assemblyman, 475. Eight counties in the state show a net Republican gain of 3,016. Somerset gives a Democratic majority of 200.

Trenton-Figures are lacking and in most cases are not obtainable. There is every indication, however, of a Democratic victory. Chairman McDermott, of the Democratic state committee, says: "Abbett is certainly elected by a majority largely in excess of Governor Greene's. I have been notified that State Senator Worth is re-elected from Merris county, where we also gain an assemblyman.

Chairman Smith, of Essex county, telegraph, from Newark that Essex has been carried for Abbett, and seven Democratic assemblymen elected out of ten. This is a gain of two. In Hudson county the indications point to the election of eight and possibly nine Democratic assemblymen. Camden-Passaic county gives Grubb, for governor, 2,000 majority. Camden county gives Grubb 8,100 majority. Ocean county gives Grubb 350 majority. Trenton-Scattering returns received show Grubb, for governor, will have a majority in Mercer county of 500. In Burlington county the entire Republican ticket is elected. Grubb having a majority in the county of 1,500.

MARYLAND.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 6.—The elections in this state were for a full legislative amendment which is to be submitted to ticket and state comptroller. In Baltimore a mayer, chief judge, sheriff, clerk of the supreme court, city survey ir and thirty-three members of the city council. Comparisons are made with 1888.

> The vote in Maryland was very heavy, Indications received thus far indicate Baughman's, Democrat, majority for comptroller will be 10,000, of which he receives 6,000 in Baltimore. The legislature, as indicated, will be largely Democratic. Davidson, Democrat, for mayor of Paltimore, is elected by probably 3,560 plurality. Cleveland's plurality in 1888 was 5,045, > Baltimore—The election in Baltimore was comparatively quiet. One man was killed in the Fifteenth ward. John Driscoll, a Democratic ticket holder, knocked down a fusion ticket holder named Apple and kicked him to death. The quarrel was not political, but the result of an animosity between the men on other grounds.

Baltimore—The Democrats have elected their candidates for mayor, chief judge, clerk of the superior court, city surveyor and sheriff. Of the legislators the Democrats elect twelve and the Fusionists six. Poe, Democrat, for the senate in the Second district, is elected. Of the city council the Democrats elect probably seven second branchmen and ten first branchmen, and the Fusionists four second branch and twelve first branch members.

Baughman, Democrat, for state comptroller, is elected by about 11,000 ma jority. The Republicans gain half a dozen legislation, but the Democrats will have both houses by an immense majority.

CAUSES FOR THE DEFEAT.

FIRST ASSISTANT POSTMASTER GEN-ERAL CLARKSON'S REASONS.

In Virginia, Mahone Owes His Defeat to the Usual Methods of Fraud, Suppression and False Counting-In Ohio. Mainly a Reaction Against Radical Temperance and Sunday Legislation. Prohibition the Weapon in Iowa. WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—First Assistant Postmaster General Clarkson, in giving his views last night to a representative of the United Press on the results of Tuesday's election, said: "The invariable results of the year following a presidential election have repeated themselves this year. There are many surprises in the Republican defeat, but they come from local causes in every state except Virginia, and there the result was gained by the usual methods of fraud, suppression and false counting. A Democratic state election board, elected by a Democratic legislature, appoints all the judges of election, and the law clothes these election judges with police court powers; and they can order any voter they please to jail for the day and reign in absolute arbitrary power. The Republicans of Virginia did not have the selection of a single judge of election in the whole state. With such machinery the Democratic majority might easily have been 100,000, instead of 30,000. The negro is disfranchised. In Virginia the black men give up their right to hold the offices and now the Democrats demand that they shall not exercise any choice even as between the white men who are to hold the offices. Gen. Mahone and the Republicans made a gallant and splendid fight, and had an honest majority of the voters of the state with them on the tariff and state debt questions; but nothing can win against a complete and skillful system of fraud. The attempt to couple the national administration conspicuously with this defeat is undeserved, as the president simply showed the same friendly interest in Mahone that he did in the Republican candidates in other states.

Ohio and Iowa.

The causes operating in Ohio and Iowa were largely the same—evidently and mainly a reaction against radical temperance and Sunday legislation. The Sunday law, and the enforcement of it, changed Hamilton county and the Germans against the Republican party; and Governor Foraker, despite his splendid record and his almost matchless popularity in the party and the nation, went down with it. In Iowa the main cause of the change is due to prohibition. The state has been very close on state issues ever since prohibition was made a law. The Republicans elected their governor four years ago by only 1,500 plurality, and two Staunton. Danville and Lynchburg, give years ago by 6,000 plurality. The a Democratic gain of about 9,000 over counties bordering on the Mississippi river hazing breed que, Davenport and Burlington, all of them with a European or foreign-born population holding a majority of the votes, are interested in prohibition and they have voted overwhelming against the Republican party because it stood in that state for the law and its enforcement. There was also some Republican dissatisfaction and alienation on account of the present governor's extreme views on the railroad question and his enforcement of the railroad laws. But lowa has been gradually losing its Republican majority for years. More than $0,000 Republicans have left the state, going into the Dakotas, Kansas and the southwestern country, while the later immigration to the state has been largely Democratic. This year's results are, in the main, simply increased evidences of the indisposition of a majority of the American people to accept prohibition and too radical legislation or questions that are moral and social rather than political.

Raifrond Men Strike.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Nov. 7.-All the freight conductors and brakemen on the Evansville and Indianapolis and branches of the Mackey system went on a strike yesterday morning for an advance in wages, demanding the same scale of wages paid on the Louisville, Evansville and St. Louis and Peoria, Decatur and Evansville railroads, which is an advance of 1 cent per mile for conductors and about one-half a cent per mile for brakemen. Mr. Hurd, master of transportation, drew up a scale of wages and afterward refused to sign the paper with the grievance committee. No freight trains on the above railroads were moved yesterday morning.

(Special Correspondence.)

Washington, Oct. 31.—One day last week I was in the city of Wheeling, W. Va. At the railway station was an acquarntance, Capt. W. W. O'Brien, one of the prominent bankers of the town and now a rich man. Said he: "On your way east over the mountains you will see some of the railroads ex-Senator Davis and his son-in-law, Mr. Elkins, are building Perhaps you will be interested in knowing something of Mr. Davis and his enterprises. Tourty years ago I was a porter wheeling a truck along this platform here. My pay was $1.50 a day, and I thought I was getting rich, because be fore that I had been getting but ninetyrive cents a day working in the nail mill over there. I remember very distinctly the day the first train on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad crossed Wheeling creek into this station.

"The conductor of the train was Davis, now the miliionaire ex-senator. Before that he had been a freight brakeman. Davis always had a way of saving up money. Before he left the road as conductor he had saved up a snug little sum, and he didn't take it from the company either. At a little town up in the monutains he started a country store with his savings. It was not much bigger at first than a freight car, and, if I mistake not his start was made by throwing a counter across one end of a wrecked and abandoned cattle car, which he boarded up and swung a door on for his uses. After a time he started a bank in one end of his store, invested in lands and mines. and began to grow rich.

"If ex-Senator Davis lives ten or fif teen years," continued Capt. O'Brien. "he will be one of the richest men in America. He and his son-in-law are constantly buying timber and mineral lands in the interior of West Virginia at asionishingly low prices. They have bought thousands and tens of thousands of acres of beautiful timber lands at a dollar or two an acre-lands which will be worth twenty-five or fifty times as much as soon as a railroad reaches near enough to them to develop their resources. Davis and Elkins are building their own railways, thus bringing out the value of their immense landed pos-

"The Davises are taking the place of the Garatts as the richest and most important family in this section of the While the Garretts have been having nothing but bad luck, the Davises have gone right along, adding millions to mishons. The Baltimore and Ohio road has not paid a dividend for three years, but the Davis enterprises have all flourished. Actually, the Baltimore and Ohio is now being supplanted in sections of this state by the Davis roads on account of better management. Davis hines. If, who used to be a freight brakeman on the Baltimore and Ohio, is a richer man than Garrett ever was.

"Pe ; ie may think there is luck in this," whost Capt. O'Brien, "but I can see something better than luck. I see a nundamental difference in the principles governing the two families. The Garret's were brought up as votaries of fashion and pleasure. They were not trained to business, to railroading, to the management of large enterprises. It is well known that Robert Garrett lost his reason through excesses in the pursuit of pleasure. Queer that this great family should finally have all its preperty come under the control of a woman. I was in this very station in which we are now talking, a few weeks ago, when a special car rolled in. From it stepped a beautiful young woman, a blende, attired in a plain traveling costume. Hereye appeared quickly to take in everything-the station, the tracks, the condition of the railway property in general. She made inquiries of the men who accompanied her, and gave some directions. I asked who she was, and was told. Miss Mary Garrett, the boss of the B. and O. railroad.' She was on a tour of inspection. It is said she has actual and active control of the vast interes, sof the Garrett family, and that under her management the property is now in a green shape than it has been at and the challes the last five years.

All bis leaves of absence Lieut. Brown spends in Well Virginia, learning the details of his fatherin-law's business. I am told he has made special study of railway management, going out on the trains, into the shops, with the construction and repair gangs, besides learning all about executive work in the general offices and at the headquarters of the division superintendents. In due time Lieut. Brown will probably rettre from the navy and become general manager of the Davis system of railways. A third son-in-law is Capt. Spellman of the army, and he is pursuing the same course. He, too, will in the future be found actively connected with the Davis system of mines and railways. The Blaines and the Davises are great friends, and I understand Emmons Blaine is to link his fortunes with the family in a business way. He was sent west to get an education in the freight and traffic department of the Santa Fe road, and has returned to take a prominent post, at a salary of $8,000 a year, on one of the Davis roads.

"These facts give you an insight to the methods of ex-Senator Davis. He is building for the future as well as for the present. The same care and foresight are displayed in all phases of his work. Is it any wonder that he is successful, him one of the richest men of America? By the side of the railway tracks in Wheeling I had pointed out to me sevwhich a good story and a story with a moral can be told. Of these my entertaining friend the banker said: "There, sir, are some of the most prosperous concerns in this city. Each of them was started years ago by poor men on the co-operative plan. Take the big pottery over there, for example. Eight or ten pottery workers of Pittsburg, tired of working for wages, loaded their household goods into a freight car, bought a few tools, came to this city and found an old shed in which to go to work. Their combined capital did not exceed a thousand dollars. But every man in the firm was a worker and a skilled mechanic. They found ready sale for their wares, and pros pered. Their pottery, as you now see it covers an acre or more of ground, and gives employment to several hundred persons. To this day it is owned by the original proprietors, or their children or grandchildren. It has made several mer rich, and all interested are well to do These potters have kept close together not only in business, but in church and society. They have intermarried, and thus we have a coterie of potters in our community, and no better citizens have we. This is the history of several of our large enterprises. The men who started these shops worked in them, and taught their children to work in them, just as ex-Senator Davis is teaching his sons-inlaw his business. There, in my opinion, is the keynote of prosperity, a thing which we know too little about in this

At Wheeling I also met David R. Paige, of New York, a man whose career points a moral and adorus a tale. Paige was a successful business man in Ohio. and, being extraordinarily and deserved ly popular, was induced to enter politics. Here also he was successful winning a seat in congress. But one term in Washington satisfied him that the national legislature was not the place for a man of energy, for a man who wants to command success instead of waiting for it. So he left politics and went to New York city as a contractor. There he is rapidly growing rich. The years which he devoted to politics were lest years.

Just now Mr. Paige is engaged in ar enterprise of general interest and importance. He is bridging the Olac river at Wheeling, tunneling through the mountain on the West Virg and constructing several miles of track. Odd that a city so important as Wheel ing should have gone all these years without a railroad bridge over the Ohio. Now that town, by the extenditure of two or three millions of dollars in bridge and tunnel, is in a fair way to realize the hopes of its citizens by becoming a g iteway between the east and the west.

In these days of millionaires I was as tonished to hear that the city of Wheeling, a manufacturing town, full of nail mills, steel mills, blast furnaces, glass works and potteries, contains not one millionaire. How many cities are there in this country, of $0,000 industrial popalation, that can boast of the absence of millionaires from their midst? I say boast, because no millionaires means diffusion of wealth and general prosperity.

A friend came into the car there and handed me a small pasteboard box. "Take that home with you," he said facetionsly, "but be careful how you use its contents. It may make trouble in your family." It was a box of Wheeling stogas. "Statisticians have calcu lated," added my friend, "that one divorce in ten in this country is caused by the smoking of Wheeling stogas by busbands. So our town has a good deal to answer for. What is called the Kentucky stoga, made here of the strongest Kentucky tobacco, gives the smoker a breath that will stein furniture. But the regular Wheeling stoga is not so bad. Try one We make millions of these every year. Machinery is employed in the relling of them, and the labor is pretty cheep, else we could not make them and pay the same internal revenue tax that is paid on high priced cigars, and sell at $6 a thousand, whole-

Everybody in Wheeling smokes stogas. There must be some peculiar fascination in the long, thin, twists of tobacco, for they say that after a man has smoked them for a time the most delicately perfuned cigar has no temptation for him. He is thoroughly welded to the stora. General Manager Odell, of the B. and O., buys four or five thousand of these stogas every month, smokes some of them himself, and gives the others away to the railroad men whom he meets out on the line. Whenever he meets an engineer, brakeman, fireman or section boss, he hands out a stoga. One of the division superintendents on the Pennsylvania does the same thing, and says the cheap cicar materially helps him in making the acquaintance and gaining the friendship of his men. So the stoga is not such a bad thing after all,

HOW THE BRITISH OUTDO AMER-ICANS IN ADVERTISING.

Enormous Sams Paid in England for Advertising-$7,500,000 for "Advertising Privileges" in One Year-A Bill Sticker Makes $2,000,000.

[Special Correspondence.]

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31. - America leads the world in so many things that when we have to take the second place we can well afford to acknowledge it. In the matter of advertising, for instance, we are in the habit of thinking that we of the United States discount and that he has acquired property which every other nation, and if asked where needs nothing but development to make the greatest advertisers are to be found nine people out of ten would undoubtedly say in this country. But it is not true. Great blowers of our own horn as we eral large pottery and glass works, about are, the Englishmen, and even the Frenchmen, can give us points in this matter. Our business men are without doubt skillful and enterprising in their way, but as yet they are only students of an art in which their brethren of England are past masters.

One of the first things that strike an observing American setting foot in Liverpool is the number, variety and ingenuity of street advertisements. The horse cars, or train cars, as they call them over there, are literally moving sign boards. These train cars are two story houses on wheels. The advertisements cover every inch of space, inside and out, which is not required for seating the passengers. Looking upon the bewildering array of proclamations of the virtues of soaps and matches and announcements of current amusements, it is simply impossible for the stranger to tell the destination or route of the car. Omnibuses are decorated in the same way, and the drivers have mud curtains, umbrellas and waterproof coats all emblazoned with advertisements.

"Sandwich men" are neither few nor far between. We have them here, but in English cities there are hundreds to our dozens. They go about over there in companies of twenty-five, straggling in single file along the gutters-for they are not allowed on the sidewalks-and when one company passes another the sight has the effect of a procession of uniformed men. A few years ago I crossed the Atlantic with a great American manufacturer who was going over to teach the Old Country how business might be built up by novel advertising. His soap had conquered the United States, and he proposed to wash all England with it. He got no further than Liverpool, and had been but one day on English soil when he confided to me that although he had come to teach he would stop to learn. "We do not know the alphabet of the art of advertising," said he, "and as to soap, well, hereafter I shall substitute tearry soap to England' for the proverb 'carry coals to Newcastle.' To my mind it is

A railway station, whether surface or The biggest letters of all are employed. in displaying the name of the great bill posters of the United Kingdom, and it is not uncommon for the stranger to mistake these names for the first three or four times that he sees them for the names of stations. To find the latter in this wilderness of signs requires experience as well as keenness of sight. The general recollection of them is a confused imigling of bright color and paint, but now and then a catchword from frequent iteration lingers in the mind.

One placard in flaring red and black letters two feet long reads, "What it costs to kill a cat." The rest of the notice was in much smaller type, and as often as I scanned the legend I am still in ignorance as to what the awful penalty of felicide may be. I am not arguing in favor of this sort of advertisingon the contrary my inclination is against its utility. It is an open question how many of these railway signs are ever read except by the few people who are waiting over for trains and have neither newspaper nor books in hand for time killing. The spaces in the tomb like underground porches ought to be more valuable, since while shut into them you are obliged to read what stares you in

I have a number of these advertisements, together with notices to the passengers, quite by heart. If you look at your compagnons de voyage they glare back at you with an air which accuses you of all sorts of evil intentions, and rather than encounter their suspicious or the lucking accusation of impertinence you must perforce commit to memory the fributes of respect to cowslip wine and Boss ale as well as the records of convictions for stealing rides and assaulting pasengers on "circle trams." On the other hand the most useless of the premisenous bill sticking would seem to be that on the pavements where all day long forlors figures crouch; in the slush just outside of the curbstone pasting bill after bid on the wet stones to be obligated by the feet of the throng, scarcely one of whom pauses to glance at the paper on which he Pinafore," is also the lessee of the advertising privileges on the railways of the United Kingdom. The income of Mr. Smith's firm from this source must be as large as from the newsdealing business, of which he has the monopoly, or as that of Spiers & Pond from their res to say, over seven million dollars. I would find this hard to believe if I did not know that my informant himself, a soap "promoter," pays Smith & Son £46,000 for handling and displaying a single advertisement. Willing and Partington divide the bill posting business of London between them. Each began life with a brush in one hand and a paste pot in the other. Each is now a millionaire, and Willing, who is said to be unable to read and write, has an estimated fortune of £2,000,000.

The greatest advertiser in the world is Pear, of soap celebrity. His expenditures on this account stagger belief, but Mr. Barrett, who is to all intents and purposes Pear, says that for every pound that he has spent in printer's ink, paint and paste, he expects to spend ten. It was this concern which enlisted the best brushes of the Royal Academy in the execution of its advertising schemes. It is not unusual to pay $2,000 for an acceptable design, and there are scores of artistically painted pictures on the dead walls of London for which he has paid as much as $500 apiece. But with him, as with nearly every other successful advertiser, dead wall advertising is secondary to newspaper advertising. "It is printer's ink that pays the best after all: we find that the quickest response always comes from newspapers and pe-

You may have some faint idea of what such a concern spends in advertising when I tell you that Pear's people paid £50,000 ($250,000) in laying the words, "Good morning. Have you used Pear's soap?" before the public, and that they think they never made a better investment. For Sir J. Millais' "Bubbles" they paid $7,500. Here is something for American business men to put in their pipes and smoke. Pushing Pear's are two other scaps, Brooke's and the Sunlight, the former made by an American house, with headquarters in Philadelphia. The soap people, by the way, tell me that it pays to advertise soap only in English speaking countries. Soap is not in demand in any other.

In this country the newspapers too often have to run after the advertisers instead of the adverti rs running after them. Not so in England. There the question of the utility of advertising is past the point of argument. It is only a question of choice of mediums and methods and whether the advertiser can get the space that he wants in the medium of his choice. In the counting rooms of the great dailies and of such periodicals as Punch, The Graphic, the Queen, The Field, etc., there is a sublime air of "take it or leave it" on the part of the men behind the counter. Some papers so rigidly limit the space given to advertisers that one must wait weeks or months for the appearance of his announcement, and then perhaps accept a half less room than heasles.

Perhaps this difference is due in some degree to the fact that English publishers show their own faith in advertising by taking their own medicine in most liberal doses. All of the big daily newspapersexcept, perhaps, The Times, which is a underground, is the paradise of the out- law unto itself-are liberal advertisers. door advertiser. In six consecutive days The London Times devoted 206 columns to advertisements and 298 to other reading matter. In the same namber of issues The Daily Tolograph presented 2011 columns of advertising and only 1821 of other matters. The Daily News gave 1831 of its 336 columns to advertising. The proportion of advertisements to pure reading matter in the great American newspapers is smaller, but with us it is not always easy, even for the expert eye, to tell the one from

The Daily Telegraph, which claims the largest circulation in the world, and The Petit Journal, of Paris, which long ago distanced it in the race, are large bill board and dead wall advertisers, and The London Daily News follows on the same lines. By the way, I have often seen half a column or more of journalists' wants and journalists wanted, the former predominating. This class of advertisers is very rare with us outside of papers, of which Mr. Forman's Journalist is easily chief, devoted to the newspaper men and their interests. "A new theory has been started with regard to the use of soar on the face. Women who for years have been careful of their con. plexions would never, under any circumstances, wash the face in soap, as it was said to roughen and coarsen the skin. Now, that Ivory Soap has been invented, this idea is exploded, and a wellknown physician in the metropolitan profession recommends his women patients to use it freely every day, lathering the skin well. He states that none but the most beneficial results will be effected by this method of improving the skin.

He holds-with considerable plausibility-that the pores of the face become as much clogged by grease and dirt as the hands or any other portion of the body. And if soap is considered a necessary purifier in the bath, its needs must be felt equally on the face. By an abundant and regular lathering the facial pores, he claims, are kept open, clean, free from the clogging matter that produces unsightly blackheads, acne, pimples, and a pure, healthy, fresh and brighter complexion is the resultant. Not mincing matters, he says that the trouble with most women who have sallow, pasty skins is, that from year's end to year's end they never have a really clean face."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "lvory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

SECRETARY RUSK'S FIRST ANNUAL RE-PORT MADE PUBLIC.

Rapid Development of Agriculture in the Rocky Mountains-The Condition of the Sugar Industry-Farmers' Institates a scrong Lever for Raising and Upho'ding the Work of Superior Agricu'tural Education.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—The annual report of Secretary Rusk, of the department of agriculture, and the first issued under the newly constituted department. has just been made public. The secretary makes the usual references to the work of the several scientific and other divisions in his department, and, in addition, he deals at length with certain plans for the thorough reorganization of the department of agriculture, and suggests several new features in the interest report calls attention to the fact that the first efforts toward a reorganization were hampered, because of the surprising fact that the appropriations for the current fisc d year were made entirely upon the basis of the old organization, no account being taken of the entire change in the statutes of the department. The secretary insists upon the necessity for his relief from this embarrassment, and for adequate appropriations to enable him to meet what he believes to be the the estimates for the ferthcoming fiscal year-$1,359,000. He says that the aggregate sum asked for in his estimates must not be measured by what is past, but by what a great agricultural country should no toward "sustaining protecting and progroting a calling which lies at the foundation of its prosperity and power."

A striking contrast is drawn between this amount and the appropriations for agriculture made by those countries which, the report says, "are the most active competitors of American farmers in the world's market." A comparison shows that Great Britain appropriates for acriculture $1,500,000. Germany $2,850,000. Brazil $20,000,000 for aguiculture and mines and France $5,000,000. Considerable space is devoted to the work of the division of statistics. The crop reporting system, he says, while approximate and valuable, is in danger of becoming discredited by the popular acceptance of its results as exact in precision and absolute in authority. It should be remembered that they are not the conclusions of a thorough census. though they may be far better than the work of a poor census; that they are the consolidations of local estimates of agricultural experts and are intended as a foil to the interested, biased and instruthful statements, that speculators, issue to mislead their victims.

Agriculture in the Rocky Wountains. Of the rapid development of agriculture in the Rocky Mountain districts the secretary says that the division of statistics has been directed to investigate their resources with all the facilities at senting Bish its command. "The results," he adds, also arrived. "will surprise the eastern states with new views of the wealth and progress of the great American desert of the recent The condition of the spear unlastry is

There are ling it in soil and climate. There are perhaps other parts of the United States where similar success could be secured, but these have not been pointed out. Special attention is to be given to the development of varietics of sorghum containing a higher content of a vilable sugar. Important progress has already been made in this direction.

Production of Sugar Beet.

Many localities in the United States, especially in the north and on the Pa cific coast, are known to be specially suitable to the production of a sugar beet rich in sachaime matter. The interest in the subject developed by the successful experiments in California will be met by the publication during the coming winter of a full report on the beet sugar industry in the United States.

The report urges the duty of the government to assume a more dermite supervision of such forest areas as are still owned by it and as occupy a position of importance in the regulation of water flow and of other climatic conditions, and emphasises the importance of the relations which the forests bear to the problem of nrigation in the and lands and of their immense annual product.

The subject of agricultural organizations is dwelt upon earnestly, their astonishing growth during the past few years being cited as strong evidence of the growth of the spirit of self-help among the farmers. The farmers' institutes are referred to particularly as one of the greatest movements in the history of agriculture and as the strongest lever for raising and upholding the work of superior agricultural education represented by our system of agricultural colleges and experiment stations. The secretary recommends, without going into details, that the department should be empowered to afford aid and encouragement to this work.

The necessity for inspection at the time of slaughter, he says, is first to enable the authorities to promply locate any cattle disease centers, and secondly, to avoid the anomaly of leaving the inspection of our own meat products to the officials of other countries, thus giving foreign governments some show of reason for the claim that they have better opportunities for learning of disease among American cattle than are enjoyed by our own government. He accordingly advocates 'such an amendment to the law under which the bureau is at present organized as will provide for such official national inspection as shall guarantee the fitness of our meat products for food consumption under the seal of the United States

CRESSON'S DEFALCATION.

The Bank to be Re-Opened and All Claims to be Paid in Full.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Nov. 4.—The de-National bank of Conshohocken, has taken another turn and the directors say of the development of agriculture. The , the bank will be re-opened in a few days and all claims paid in full. On Saturday they explored the contents of Cresson's private box in the vault and found $75.000 worth of life insurance, all in force, two mortgages of $2,000, stock in the Good Brothers Iron works to the value of $2,000 and $1,000 worth of stock in the Spring Garden Farmers' Market company of Plaladelphia. They have entered suit against him as a fugitive for $50,000 and under this will attich every dollar of his personal effects. All of the lite osmance policies are written as payable to his heirs or assigns except obligations of the department to the policies for $15,000, in which his wife is country. The secretary anticipates a mained as the beneficiary. Forty-five portion of his plan of reorganization in hundred dollars of the insurance is on the endowment, plan and will meture in March. All the insurance but the $15,-600 m Mrs. Cres on a tayor will be converted into cash. The directors hope to realize 525,000 at the lowest possible calculation out of Cresson's assets, which they discovered Saturday. Execution has been issued on State Treasurer Hart's $15,000 judgment to cover the amount of state funds deposited in the bank, and all of Cresson's property with the exception of his gas and electric light stock is practically in the hands of the directors of the bank. The directors intend depositing in the bank $50,000, so as to avert the nice sity of assessing the stock, and re-opening for business in a manner calculated to re-establish confidence in the concern.

DR. CRONIN'S CLAN-NA-GAEL FRIENDS TALK OUT IN MEETING.

Dr. O'Reilly and Col. Atkinson in Ireland for No Good-A Motion Made to Notify Parnell of Their True Mission-The Enemies of Dr. Cronin Hold a Meeting to Raise a Defense Fund.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Dr. Cronin's Clanna-Gael friends, who are preparing to add to the prosecution fund by means of the annual Irish Manchester martyr celebration, to be held Nov. 23, heard the report of their committee vesterday afternoon at the Grand Pacific. A letter, enclosing $120 for the prosecution fund from the Celtic Club of Rochester, N. Y., was read. After various committees falcation of William H. Cresson, the contamination and reported progress, fugitive cashier of the Tradesman's P. W. Dunne arose and said: "There is a demand for decided action by this body. Dr. O'Reilly and Col. Atkinson, of Detroit, have gone to Ireland. It is not possible they had no object in view, and I move that we send a cablegram to Parnell at once to advise him of their true mission. The opposition, the murderers of Dr. Cronin and the arch-fiend back of it all, have sent them there to poison the minds of our race. They are now trying to find support in the Old Country, and if we don't let our country men know who they are and what they are there for, we will suffer for it. We are already misunderstood, and Parnell ought to be advised to have nothing to do with them until he hears from the meeting of the 23d."

"That's right," said P. O. O'Connor. "four-fiths of the Irish people are so mystimal that they believe there was justification in the murder of Dr. Cronin, and that he was a spy. The man we know to be responsible for his murder, and who has long been the plunderer and spodsman of his people, is their demigod. The frish people can't believe that this uncrowned king of 15,000,000 people can be guilty of such a crime, and they look upon us with cont mpt tor prosecuting patriots, who they believe put to death spies. These men who have gone to Ireland know what they are about, and they will get aid, either or a sentimental of a financial kin l. to buy the acquittal of the tools of the arca-frend. The suggestion was opposed by John Devoy, on the ground that the coming event was a celebration of a revolutionary measure, and a communication from it to Parnell might embarcass that leader by connecting him with it.

Raising Money for the Defense. CHICAGO, Nov. 4.-About 100 of the Clar-na-Gael enemies of Dr. Cronin attended an open meeting in McCoy's hotel vesterday afternoon for the pur-rose of rusing a defense fund for the men now on trial. Airangements were also made for the Manchester martyr celebration in Central Music hall, the proceeds of which will be turned over to the treasurer of the fund.

St. Louis, Nov. 4 -Advices from the Cherokee nation state that the recent order or communication of Secretary Noble in regard to Cherokee affairs, which was received at Tahlequah, the capital of the nation, Friday evening, has had just the opposite effect the com missioners expected. Indians who tayored the sale of the outlet before are now obstinate. They say the government has adopted buildozing tactics and that they will not yield an inch. Chief Mayes is reported as saying. The order is no surprise to us. It is not the first one we have received. We understand that it was designed to coerce us into selling. The government cannot bulldoze us in this matter. The commissioners are trying to ring-fire us like hunted deer. He denied that he was in tavor of selling the strip. He did not know whether he would appoint delegates to confer with the commissioners, and was not sure that there would be any ne_ottations at all. He reiterated his former opinion that it would require a change in the constitution before any land could be sold.

SECRETARY BLAINE SENDS A LETTER TO THE MEXICAN GOVERNMENT.

Apologizing for Minister Mizner's Utterances on the Occasion of His Presentation Speech to the Costa Rican Goserament-It Will Cause No International Dispute, as it Has Been Satisfactorily Sattled. WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.-M. Romero, the Mexican minister, hurriedly returned to Washington from the Pan-American excursion. His visit is in connection with the alleged protest of his government against the presentation speech at Costa Rica of United States Minister Mizner to the Central American states. That part of the speech to which objection appears to have arien is as follows. The states of Central America must unite. A strong federal government is your only salvation Colombia is miassing her troops on the southern border of Costa Rica. Mexico has a covetous eye on Guatemala. It will be only a short time before Colombia will seek to seize your state and Mixico will seize Guatemala. Central America will be blotted from the map of independence and her identity suns in that if Colombia and Mexico The time is drawing near, and only the most energetic action in federating Central America, can save your freedom.

Weshington, Nov. 4.—Senor Romero, the Mexican minister, said last night that United States Munister Mizner's utterances on the occasion of his presentation speech to the Costa. Minister Romero has lately received a copy of The Diago Otheral, the occural organist the Mexican government, of Oct. 2). In that pop r is published the official correspondence which has grown out of the Mizn'r ncident, the series of inters being concluded by one from Secretary Blaine of Oct. 11, which, translated and given out last night by Senor Romero, reads as "I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your note of the 5th inst., in which, by the instructions of the secretary of foreign relations of, accompanied by the full text of Senor Manschals letter to you dated Sept 28 you complain in the name of your government of certain allusions, made by the minister of the United States in Central America in presenting his ciedentials as envey extraordinary and minister plenipotentary in Costa Rica on the both of last August. The impropriety and improdent character of the remarks retern I to wanoticed by this department when the speech was received, and instructions were sent to Mr. Mizener on the subject on Sept. 18, expr sang sincere regret at his words, and the car that they would receive crioneous interpretation, to which unfortunately they were puble, and which, as noticed by your letter. has been given them by the Mexican Lovernm nt.

Knowing the hi tory of the relations of mutual intumer and confidence which it has been the constant purpose of this government to maintain with Mexico, as well as with other nations, it hardly appears necessary for me to as sure you, and through you the government which you represent, that the remarks of Mr. Mizener, which implied an officious and partial disposition on the part of this government, were wholly unauthorized and that they occasion sincere regret to this government and are disappioved by it."

Dresbach! Congratulations!

Saved from the wreck-Isaac

The grand old Republican party is not hurt a bit.

Virginia has again been stolen from the Republican party.

Has the Democratic party the courage to abolish the boards, to kill the liquor legislations, to re-elect

Glorious little Carroll came up election, anyway.

Brother Dresbach need not purchase that heavy overcoat. The house is Democratic. He is ineligible but he is safe.

more closely together. It shocks the stay-at-homes; it forces regret upon the anti-third termers and acts as a cement upon the whole party.

Should Mr. Dresbach turn out to be one of the elect, his party must not complain if he is unseated because of constitutional ineligibility. The warning was sounded in time and sounded loudly.

Foraker is still Foraker. Victory is not with him, but vim and vigor are his still. He has sympatny and he has credit, and the people of Ohie will never see him laid to one side because he ventured and lost,

The Democrats swept Stark county. Give them full credit for it. Republican over-confidence, Democratic support that did not materialize, a special fight for sheriff when more effective work might have been done, the fact that this is an off year, and some dozens of reasons all contrib-

It is reported that much of the alleged Democratic defection for Mr. Krider was in a measure a scheme to entrap the betting speculators. Be this as it may, Mr. Krider seems to be elected. The Republicans made a magnificent fight against him, and were aided to an extent at least, by the bolters,

Taking it all in all, the Republican campaign managers fought a good fight. Julius Whiting as the state committeeman was constantly busy, and Thomas F. Turner did all that a man could to bring a better result not to be forgotten at this time of sorrowful reflection and congratula-

At was too bad that Mr. Folger should be defeated; but he was, and there's an end to it. He has been a resident of Massillon for nearly three-quarters of a century and his final canvass should have resulted differently. The successful candidate, Mr. Paul, is a worthy young man, who in a judicial capacity will act, without bias.

The happiest man in Massillon is Edward Everett Dresback. He is as merry as the first robin of spring. His is an hysterical nature and he is giving full vent to it. Go it Dresbach! Stay with the boys, and partake freely of the cup of fame while you may. But provide yourself with a heavy overcoat, for there is a chilling frost due early in January!

When Judge Thurman was told that the legislature was safely Democratic, he laughed and said, "Now there will be fun. We shall see probably the finest scrub race on record." The noble line of great men suga gested as companions to John SherThomas. One of them to be a United States senator!

If THE INDEPENDENT did not admit that it is disappointed beyond expression, it would be telling a lie. But the battle is over, and with cheerful spirit this paper goes to press as usual. THE DAILY Independent has never before, iu its life's history, been called upon to record political defeat, and it feeds upon this fact with some degree of satisfaction and faces the rising sun.

The liquor interest killed Republican chances in Hamilton county, and stay-at-home Republicans tried to finish the business. In Hamilton county it was lack of principle vs. principle, and lack of principle won. Elsewhere the Republican party defeated itself. The self-congratulation of the Democratic brethren, the German wards, but the figures while excusable, should be tempered by the fact that they came near winning by sufferance, and not because of their inherent strength.

It has been the pleasure of THE Independent not to be obliged to say anything to the detriment of Mr. Krider, further than to protest that he was a Democrat and to mention one or two trifling indiscretions insmiling with an old-time majority. cident upon a heated campaign. That Carroll is appreciated the day after he is personally popular his vote in Massillon shows. He was a good deputy, and there is every reason to believe that he will make an effi cient sheriff. Republicans who can not sufficiently regret the downfall of their own hopes will nevertheless The result only binds Republicans | join in hearty congratulations to Charles A. Krider.

In Stark county we have had a Republican disaster. And that disaster is attributed to the lack of interest which Republicans manifested. While Massillon got out a tolerably full vote, this was not true of Canton. The Republican stay-at-home vote of that town is dreadful to contemplate. Too much attention was given to the shrievalty. At 3 o'clock Wednesday morning the crowds inquired only as to Krider and Shanafelt. Apparently there was no thought of anything else. The result was that the Democratic ticket took care of itself.

Everybody is saying that it requires about two years of Democratic misrule in every seven for Republicans to rightly appreciate their own good works. This seems to be the fact, and has for its companion the other fact that every Democratic interregnum has been a period of mismanagement and bad legislation. This is true of former years. We are all inclined to regard the future as doubtflu. THE INDEPENDENT trusts that the two years to come will not be marked by the scenes of the past. It hopes that Ohio Democracy will redeem itself. It hopes for the coming of a time when truth does not things for which provision has not demand that the opposing side must be opposed as the representative of dishonor. So much for state politics.

Governor Foraker may be reelected and may be not. At this precise moment no one knows. he pulls through the escape will be about. The Massillon committee is narrow. This a situation that exists, and it is just as well now to force upon the Prohibition party the real responsibility for the result. The third term, home rule and kindred cries were all humbug. The mighty influence was the saloon. The saloons of Hamilton county arrayed themselves against Foroker, against the Sunday laws and against interference of any sort with their traffic. The vote of the Prohibition party, joined again with that of the only party that has ever helped the cause, would have surely won the day. The Prohibition theory is very pretty, but the facts are as stated. The Prohibition party to all intents and purposes united with the liquor dealers to encompass the downfall of Ohio's model Republican administra-

> WHY HAMILTON COUNTY WAS LOST. The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette is a tower of good, hard Republican sense. In this case its foresight was the same as its later observation. Of the causes that produced unfortunate results in Hamilton county it says:

It was the Sunday question that the eyes, persistent swelling of the joints, harmed the Republican party here in abdomen and legs, unaccountable sharp Cincinnati. The latest Sunday law begin taking Warner's Safe Cure withman includes Henry B. Payne, John was not wanted in the shape in out delay.

R. McLean, C. S. Brice and John R. which it was enacted by the Republicans who are capable of close calculations as well as deep emotions, but once it was started all the votes that it lacked at any time were effusively supplied by the Democrats.

It was conceded even by those most careless as to Sunday observance that something should be done for the decency of the day. The question was how to do it. A radical enactment was tried, and we have been unfortunate in its administra-

The saloon keepers set themselves up as a higher law-one quite unto themselves—and made proclamation that they were superior to the state. They had to be taken in hand sharply.

Citizens who make a specialty of goodness broke the lines of the Republican party in the elections last fall and spring, and boasted of their seven thousand votes, ready to be put into the scales at any hour for law and order. The theory was they would more than make up for the loss the Republicans would suffer in of the voting yesterday do not show that they distinguished themselves save by scratching the Republican and voting the Democratic ticket.

We hoped to prevent the German Republican vote from going largely with the saloons, which were organized for offensive and defensive war, and we could have accomplished it if it had not been for the complication of the Sunday question. The German Republicans are not the serfs of the saloons, but they have a strong fancy for the customs of taking their beverages out of doors on Sunday.

The question is a real difficulty, and should be handled with the greatest delicacy and the highest intelligence-and we have not succeeded on this occasion in doing it so as to take the friction off.

It is not quite certain at the hour we write how great the disaster to the Republicans is, but we may remark: These things come around about once in every seven years, and there is not much variety in the proceedings. The regular form of it is for the Republicans to get in possession of the city and county, and do works of reform, restoring the waste and making matters comparatively orderly and comforta- 127 Shaffer, 45. ble when along come our truly good citizens and must in the usme of common morality, do something to drive off the German Republicans, and then there is a smash. It is the fourth time in our recollection.

It is not the saloon question itself that has done the work, but the Sunday question; and not the saloon on Sunday wholly, but the extension of the question beyond the saloon. The real serious difficulty is in drawing the line, and our authorities have not been happy in their survey this

The saloonatic of Cincinnati will take this matter home to himself, and assume the victory as bis, and spread himself to look after the whole country. But he is mistaken.

The rext thing he knows he will probably find himself in a great deal of trouble, for he cannot stand political prosperity, and in such an hour as he thinks he stands above he world he will fall. We may expect that for a time be will be a monstrous nuisance. Then he will be abated.

Those who, with mistaken zeal for the accomplishment through laws of been made in the character of the people, and who make from time to time excessive demands upon the Republican party and aid the Democracy and keep life in them-as through the St. John fraud and other frauds they elected Cleveland over Blaine-will contemplate their work in Cincinnati Tuesday with | 258. their usual complacency.

RETURNS FROM MANY TOWN-SHIPS

Indicating a Mixed Condition of Affairs.

Canton, Nov. 6, 2 p. m,-At this hour the vote is not complete, and the indications are that the Democrats bave held their own more by reason of a stay at home Republican vote, than the strength of their own ticket. The boasts of the leading Democratic faction as to the manner in which they would slaughter Krider were not realized, and Shanafelt, though away ahead of his ticket, will hardly carry the city. JAY GOULD READY TO SPRING ONE,

Involving the W. & L. E. as a Link in a Great Trunk Line.

A United Press dispatch from Wheeling says: "It is announced that Jay Gould is the backer of the Union bridge, now being erected over the river at North Wheeling at a cost of $5,000,000. Nobody had previously known who was building the bridge, so the statement that it is the property of Jay Gould and Russell Sage and is to form a connecting link between the western systems of these magnates and an eastern connection about to be built on the line of the old Soutu Pennsylvania road, was a revelation. The recent consolidation of the Hamilton & Dayton, Wheeling & Lake Erie, Dayton, Fort Wayne & Chicago, and othe roads has shown why the river is being bridged here. But six miles of the W. & L. E. remains to be built to reach the bridge, and a road to the east is to begin in the spring. This will place Wheeling on what is destined to be one of the leading trunk lines of the country. It is said that Gould has in view a scheme that will cause a sensation in railroad circles before many months.

De ceased had been a resident of this end of the c unty for about thirty years. He was about 73 years of age and had no children.

Facts Worth Knowing.

In all diseases of the pasal mucus membrane the remedy used must be nonirritating. The medical profession has been slow to learn this. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with snuffs, douches, powders or syringes because they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who had for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict testify to radical cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm.

ANOTHER OF THE GANG CAPTURED.

"Chub" Piero Arrestedas an Accoud-

er. Recof Ike Morgan.

Detective Charles W. Page, of Richmond, Ind., arrived in this city Tuesday night, went to Canton yesterday and arrested "Chub" Piero, a notorious resident of that town, on a charge of being a member of Ike Morgan's gang of safe belibered and burglars and accredited with a number of jobs in different parts of Indiana during the past year. Piero would have been arrested at the time Morgan was taken here several weeks ago, but he was not then in condition to be moved-it being alteged that he was suffering from a gunshot wound received when surprised in one of his operations. He was brought to Massillon yesterday evening, placed in the lockup, and will be taken to the "Hoosier State" to-mor-

An erroneous impression prevails here as to the disposition made of Morgan at Richmond. A special sent from that city stated that the prosecuting attorney had discharged him for lack of proof to fasten the specific crime upon him, the facts being that he was taken to Newcastle, in the adjoing county, to answer to a more serious charge—trat of shooting with intent to kill There isn't any prospect of his release, says Detective Page, as there is positive evidence of his participation in at least half a score of unlawful offenses. Page went to a neighboring city this morning expecting to find another of the gang, and will return here to-night.

A Tale of a Chinaman. Jan Kee, a very fascinating young Chinaman, has again cast his lot in Massillon, where he resided some years ago. This fact is noted with pleasure, as in the early career of THE DAILY INDUEND-ENT Jan always preferred it for wrapping purposes to all others, and as its circulation increased and absorbed the former surplus, he became exceedingly sorrowful. Jan Kee tells a tale of Chinese business operations that parallels many in American life. About three years ago he sold out to Tun Kee with the understanding that upon his return from China he would be allowed to re-purchase. Jan came back, but it seems the wary Tun had found that he had a good thing and he declined to re-sell. So Jan went to Wellsville, very much disgusted. Now Tun Kee has just started for China, leaving the business in the hands of strange heathens, and the talented Jan appears on the scene and proposes to regain his old trade at No. 35 South Erie, so that when Mr. and Mrs. Tun Kee get back they will be given the surprise to which

THE GREAT FROST

CAMPBELL'S PLURALITY ABOUT 11,451.

And a Democratic Majority in the Legislature-Stark County Democratic by from 500 to 1,200-The Dis. trict also Democratic, and no Comfort for Republicans Except in I. S.

THE INDEPENDENT held an interview with Chairman Turner at Canton at 2 o'clock p. m, Thursday. He conceded the election of the entire Democratic ticket in this county by from 600 to 1,000, thus of course electing Howells in this district. While the feeling of those Special Dispatch to The Independent. inside the charmed circle had been one of doubt previous to the election, it was believed that something could be saved in this county. Mr. Turner has given the returns some analysis, and they show that almost without exception the Democrats have their full vote, while the Republican stay-at-homes averaged not less than twelve to a precinct. With Miss Harris, of Bellefonte, Pa., for about seventy precincts in the county, some weeks the guest of her aunt, Mrs. this shows why the Republicans came so far from winning.

The official count was commenced this morning, but owing to the extreme length of the ticket, will not be completed for several days.

THE INDEPENDENT has its own returns from every precinct with one or two exceptions, but as no doubt exists as to where the victory rests, they are not re produced. In the case of the senatorship, it roughly figures from actual returns that Mr. Howells's plurality over Mr. Russell in the county is 1,175, or about 500 in the district.

Conger Astonished.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 7.—The Democrats of Ohio realize that they won a bigger victory Tuesday than they thought they had. Governor Foraker's concession of Mr. Campbell's election yesterday afternoon was tollowed immediately by a claim from Chairman Neal of the election of the entire Democratic ticket by safe majorities. In the collection of the Arst returns only the vote on the head of the tacket was considered, and as it was thought that Foraker's defeat was due to the scratching of his name, the election of any other Democrat was hardly looked for, by even the Democrats themselves. Chairman Neal's private information shows that the rest of the Democratic state ticket has followed the head of the ticket, and he says he is sure that the whole ticket has been elected by pluralities ranging from 5,000 to $1000. He places Campbell's plurality at 10,000.

"You may say," said he, "that this committee has positive knowledge that nineteen Democrats have been elected to the state senate and seventeen Republicans, while sixty Democrats have been elected to the house and fifty-four Republicans, so that we have a majority in the central assumply of cight on joint ballot, giving us the United States senator."

Governor Foraker declined to say anything concerning his defeat. He was seen by the United Press reporter immediately after he had sent a telegram of congratulation to Mr. Campbell and seemed very happy in his deleat, although declining to talk about it. Chairman Conger, of the Republican executive committee, said he was astonished at the result and had nothing to say in explanation. It was a surprise of Italian Bers. coops pronounced good by Southern Fancier are here given. These illustrations are so plain as to need no explanation except as to size.

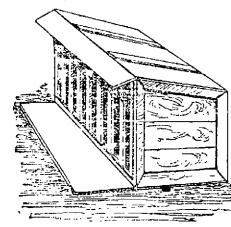

FIG. 1-COOP FOR CHICKENS. The coop shown in Fig. 1 should be 2 feet wide and 3 feet long or deep, 2 feet high in front, in feet high at the back.

Fig. 2 is a front and back view of the coop in most general use-the cheapest and casiest made.

In width and length this coop is the same as the rist. Both coops can be made the highter by using a lathe frame for the roof, putting lathes two or three inches apart and covering the sai ic with two or three ply ready roofing. The plank in front is used for feeding the young chickens on during the day and to close the coop at night.

The Pig on Dairy Farms.

The pig is an important appendage of the butter day. He is a machine for working up the perishable by-products into a marketable arcicle. He used to be kept over a year and killed when eighteen months old or more. But it is found that more money and but little less weight, with considerably less trouble and expense, result from having hin; farrowed in the winter or early in the ten months old. The larger he gets the more it costs to put a pound of pork in him, after he reaches the weight of forty to sixty pounds. Through his means skimmed milk and buttermilk have a value of about twenty-five cents per 100 pounds; without him much of it would go to waste. Give him a clover pasture and a little corn, with all the sweet | well. skimmed milk he wants, and he will live contented, if not happy, grunt his satis faction and make pork for market.

The Butter Color Question. American Daicyman says: Dairymen

are in the habit of using too much butter color. While the fact is that pure white butter will not sell, at the same time too deep a red is sure to injure the price. A light straw is the proper color, and if the cows can do t'is without let or hin drance all the better, but be sure and see that they do, or else use the commercial article that the law does not prohibit.

Hoard's Dairyman, commenting on the above, says: Glad to see that the head of the old American Dairyman is level on the morals of coloring butter. It is a sound view to take that the higher grades of butter are colored artificially less and less, for the reason that the gospel of good feeding and breeding is being more and more practiced, and this necessitates less artificial coloring. We are for the good butter breads and for the big feeds for the cash there is in then-not so much for the color that comes with them. But if it comes as an inherent adjunct all the better, but chiefly so because it saves paying out wash for coloring matter.

Relieving Contracted Feet in Horses. The beher very generally prevails that there is nothing better for relieving contracted feet in horses than water. The great trouble is to apply it properly with the ordinary bandages. A recent invention has been introduced to take the place of the old time swab. This contrivance is in the shape of a metallic footlined with sponge and having leather pads covered with sponge to fit inside the shoe, cover the sole and frog, which cannot be touched by the ordinary swab, and also go up back of the heel. It is claimed that this boot is not only much more convenient to adjust than the swab, but that is will hold the moisture much longer. These boots are made of different sizes, so as to fit the feet of both large and small horses.

POINTS FOR THE DAIRY. Opinions Expressed at a Meeting of New

York Dairymen. At a meeting of dairymen in Jefferson county, N. Y., E. S. Munson, of Delaware county, expressed the opinion that cold water setting of milk is the best. Cream but Easily Lade-Plain Directions Given should be kept cold until ready for for Making Two Effective Coops-Habits | Churning, then warmed all together,

He thought one ounce of salt to one pound Coops for the old biddy and her young of butter was about the right proportion, ones are now in order, and cuts of two although he allowed that the amount of salt used in butter was strictly a matter of taste. The butter churned weighed 10} pounds, making 19 pounds of milk necessary to produce one pound of butter Cream stored in cans or pails should be mixed or stirred thoroughly at least six times every twenty-four hours.

A member from Richmond, N. Y. with several years' experience in silos and ensilage is an enthusiast on the sulject. His dairy of fifty cows yields one pound of butter for every fourteen pounds of milk, and all the butter he produced last winter sold at an average of forty-one cents per pound. So much for ensilage.

 Λ dairyman from Utica spoke in favor of a pudicious system of feeding ensilage. He said the best corn for ensilage is the corn that will ripen best. He filled his silos with uncut sweet corn, and preferred that to any other. During last Jamuary and February it cost him eleven cents a hend per day to feed his cows on ensi-

Pasturage for Colts and Cattle.

It is important that pasturage be properly chosen, especially for growing colts. If this is on very rich land, or watery, the grass will be too rank for the growth of fine, strong bones and firm, enduring muscle. Colts grown up on such will be pretty sure to be wanting in spirit, be slow of movement and deficient in wind, so much so that when in harness, if put up to a moderately fast pace-which can only be done by a repeated application of the whip-they breathe painfully, sweat intolerably and soon tire. The best pasture ground for colts is such as is well drained or naturally rather dry, and if it abounds with scattered rocks a foot or more in diameter, these are not objectionable, but small stones are, for the colts in running about are liable to strike on them to the injury of their hoofs, while they avoid the larger ones and rocks in their exercise.

The grass on such lands is sweet and tender, highly relished by the colts and very nutritious. Growing up on such. especially if limited to it, the feet and spring, and killing him when eight or legs and the bones of the whole body become extra strong, more like ivory than common bone grown on quite succulent pasture. For cattle the pasture need not be so select in quality, for they will do well on wet meadows when the water igenerally a little below the surface of the soil, only occasionally overflowing for a few hours and then drying oil

A Long Lived Fence.

An Ohio correspondent writing in the World says. "More than fifty years ago my father made a board fence, inclosing the house, lot and garden, that remained in its place until last year, with scarcely any repairs or care other than that it was painted as a protection from decay The secret of the longevity of the postconsists in the fact that the ends of the posts rested on flat stones with an iron pin fastened in the stone with lead and projecting up into a hole bored in the foot of the posts. These were further steadied and supported by a small iron rod entering the side of each post about 1 one foot above the stone and bent so that the other end of the rod was fastened into the stone with lead as a brace and support. Last year the same posts. which still remained sound, were used again as posts for a new fence of wire

Agricultural Notes.

Don't throw soft feed on the ground, where half of it will be wasted, and then complain because "it cost so much for feed for those hens.

The proper feeding of calves is a question that should be carefully studied Judging from results, very few do so. Cold milk should never be fed. OUR CHECKER COLUMN

OCTOBER 31, 1889. Address all communications to J. T. DENVIR, Editor, 621 W. Fifteenth St., CHICAGO, ILL.

A REMARKABLE CHECKERIST.

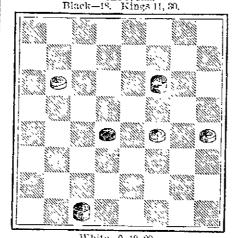

Mr. Charles Hefter, the subject of the present biography, was born at Mobile, Alu., November P3, 1860. While attending college at Chicago, Ill., he became infatuated with the game of checkers, he having received his instructions from Mr. J. Ready, who at present is a member of the Chicag Club and a good player. Mr. Hefter first attained prominence by defeating every competitor in the Northwestern Tournament. In the fall of 1877 he visited Boston and surprised the checker fraternity by defeating such well-known experts as Bowen, Bowdish, such well-known experts as Bowen, Bowdish, Bugbee, Hill, Freeman, Bailey and Irwin, played even with Kirkwood. Merry and Littlefield, defeated only by Yates and Charles F.

Barker. In his numerous sittings with Barker
the total score has been: Barker. 8; Hefter, 5; drawn, 25. He suffered defeat from James P.
Reed, and during a period of retirement lost a sitting to the late Frank Greenlee. But he has been chiefly conspicuous as a problemist, having captured prizes in both Europe and America. The problems which appear in this issue are of a high character and are worthy the attention of all classes of checker players.

TRUAX VS. HEAD.

I issued a challenge to any player in the State to play me a match for $50 to $100 a side and the championship of Minnesota, and preferred Dr. W. E. Truax, but I can not get any suitable arrangements with him. I offered to stake $100 to his $75 if he would consent to play here, as I wrote him it would be impossible for me to leave just at present at any rate. He wanted to play for the honor only, or for a very small stake, which I did not see fit to accede to. He is not very anxious to play. I think, as a gentleman here obsered to pay his board if he would play me here, and he can get passes to and from his town, and he would have $25 clear gain, but he says "No." and won't play under any consideration here (where the gate money would be somewhat more of an item than in the village of Beckenridge). So the matter rests, and I am ready to play any one else in the State for like amount, etc.

THE STORIES

BY FRANK R. STOCKTON.

[COPYRIGHT, 1889.] I am a householder in a pleasant country neighborhood, about twenty miles from New York. My family consists of myself and wife, our boy George William, aged two; two maid-servants and a man; but in the summer we have frequent visitors and at the time of which I am about to write my Aunt Martha was staying with us.

My house is large and pleasant, and we have neighbors near enough for social purposes and yet not too near or too many to detract from the rural aspect of our surroundings. | where thieves would not be likely to go. But we do not live in a paradise; we are occasionally troubled by mosquitoes and burglars.

Against the first of these annoyances we have always been able to ' and our man and the cook declare that they have become so used to them that they do not mind them; but to guard against burglars is much more difficult, and to become used to them would, I think, require a great deal of practice.

For several months before the period of this narrative our neighborhood had been subject to visits from burglars. From time to time houses had been entered and robbed, and the offenders had never been detected.

We had no police force, not even a miles away was the county-town. For fire and police protection each household was obliged to depend upon itself.

Before the beginning of the burglarious enterprises in our midst we had not felt the need of much protection in this direction; sometimes poultry was stolen, but this was a rare occurrence; and although windows and doors were generally fastened for the night, this labor was often considered much more troublesome than necessary. But now a great change had taken place in the feelings of our community. When the first robbery occurred the neighbors were inclined to laugh about it, and to say that after the rest of his family had gone to bed and then retiring and forgetting to close the front door had invited the entrance of a passing tramp. But when a second and a third house, where windows and doors had not been left open, had been entered, and, in a measure, despoiled, people ceased to laugh and if there had been any merriment at all on the subject it would have been caused by the extraordinary and remarkable precautions taken against the entrance of thieves by night. The loaded pistol became the favorite companion of the head of the house; those who had no watch dogs bought them: there were new locks, new bolts, new fastenings. At one time there was a mounted patrol of young men, which, however, was soon broken up by their mothers. But this trouble was unavailing, for at intervals the burglaries continued

As a matter of course a great many theories were broached as to the reasons for this disturbance in our hitherto peaceful neighborhood. We were at

So far mine was the only house of any importance within the distance of a mile from the station which had not in some way suffered from burglars. In one or two of these cases the offenders had been frightened away before they the tray an open box of biscuit and had done any other injury than the breaking of a window-shutter, but we had been spared any visitation whatever. After a time we began to consider that this was an invidious distinction. Of course we did not desire that robbers should break into our house and steal, but it was a sort of implied insult that robbers should think that our house was not worth breaking into. We contrived, legvever, to be rup under and it this implied contempt and even under it up. the facetious imputations of some of our lively neighbors, who declared that it looked very suspicious that we should lose nothing and even continue to add to tions that a glass of the wine would be our worldly goods while every body else

I did not, however, allow any relaxation in my vigilance in the protection of my house and family. My tuan to suffer had not yet arrived, and it might not arrise at all, but if it did come it should not be my fault. I therefore carefully examined all the new precautions my neighbors had taken against the entrance of threves, and where I approved not approve. For instance, a tin pancontaining iron spoons, the dinner-hell and a miscellaneous collection of hardware, balanced on the top stair of the staircase, and so connected with fine cords that a fluct coming up the stair. that he should be an uncoascious one. would send it rattling and bounding to whether by invocent accident or the approach of a barglar, might throw our she said that if thieves got into the house she did not want to know it and she did not want me to know it; the quicker they found what they came for and went away with it the better. Of course, she wished them kept out, if such a thing were possible, but if they did get in, our duty, as parents of the dearest of little boys, was non-interference. She insisted, however, that the room in which the loveliest of children slept, and which was also occupied by ourselves, should be made absolutely burglar-proof, and this object, by means of extraordinary bolts and chains, I flattered myself I accomplished. My Aunt Martha had a patent contrivance for fastening a door that she always used, whether at home or traveling, and in whose merit she placed implicit confidence. Therefore we did not feel it necessary to be anxious about her; and the servants slept at the top of the house,

"They may continue to slight us by their absence," said my wife, "but I do not believe that they will be able to frighten us by their presence."

I was not, however, so easily contented guard ourselves, at least in a measure, as my wife. Of course I wished to do every thing possible to protect George William and the rest of the family, but I was also very anxious to protect our property in all parts of the house. Therefore, in addition to every thing else I had done, I devised a scheme for interforing with the plans of men who should feloniously break into our home. After a consultation with a friend, who was a physician greatly interested in the study of narcotic drugs, I procured a mixture, which was almost tasteless and without peculiar odor, and village organization. There was a small of which a small quantity would in less railway station near our house and six than a minute throw an ordinary man into a state of unconsciousness. The potion was, however, no more dangerous in its effects than that quantity of ardent spirits which would cause entire insensibility. After the lapse of several hours the person under the influence of the drug would recover consciousness without assistance. But in order to provide against all contingencies my friend prepared a powerful antidote, which would almost immediately revive one who had been made unconscious by our

The scheme that I had devised may possibly have been put into use by others. But of this I knew not. I thought Captain Hubbard's habit of sitting up it a good scheme and determined to experiment with it, and if possible to make a trap which should catch a burglar. I would reveal this plan to no one but my friend, the physician, and my wife. Secrecy would be an important element in its success.

Our library was a large and pleasant room on the ground floor of the house, and here I set my trap. It was my habit to remain in this room an hour or so after the rest of the family had gone to bed, and as I was an early riser I was morning.

Before leaving the library for the night I placed in a conspicuous position in the room a small table, on which was a tray holding two decanters partially filled with wine, in the one red and in the other white. There was also upon three wine glasses, two of them with a little wine at the bottom. I took pains to make it appear that these refreshments had been recently partaken of. There were biscuit crumbs upon the tray and a drop or two of wine was freshly spilled upon it every time the trap was set. The table, thus arranged, was left in the room during the night, and early in the morning I put the trav and its contents into a closet and locked

A portion of my narcotic preparation was thoroughly mixed with the contents of each of the decanters in such proporsufficient to produce the desired effect.

It was my opinion that there were few men who, after a night walk and perhaps some labor in forcibly opening a door or a window-shutter, would not ceaso for a moment in pursuance of their self-imposed task to partake of the refreshments so conveniently left behind them by the occupants of the house when they retired to rest. Should my surmises be correct I might reasonably expect, should my house be broken Of some of these my wife and I did into, to find an unconscious burglar in the library when I went down in the morning. And I was sure, and my wife agreed with me, that if I should find a is to tie tacm hand and foot." burglar in that room or any other part of the house it was highly desirable the bottom, was looked upon by us with trap and morning after morning I great disfavor. The descent of the pan, locked it up in the closet. I can not little boy into a fit, to sev nothing of value of my plan, but it did seem a pity that I should take so much trouble for eral opinion that the miscreants had considered this field worked out and

ing great consternation, and, besides, | not object to my setting it every migufor the present. Something might happen, she remarked, and it was just as well to be prepared in more ways than one, but there was a point upon which she was very positive.

"When George William is old enough to go about the house by himself," she said, "those decanters must not be left exposed upon the table. Of course I do not expect him to go about the house drinking wine and every thing that he finds, but there is no knowing what a child in the first moments of his investigative existence may do."

For myself I became somewhat tired of acting my part in this little farce every night and morning, but when I have undertaken any thing of this sort I am slow to drop it.

It was about three weeks since I had begun to set my trap when I was awakened in the night by a sudden noise. I sat up in bed, and as I did so my wife said to me, sleepily!

"What is that? Was it thunder? There it is again!" she exclaimed, starting up. "What a crash. It must have struck somewhere." I did not answer. It was not thunder. It was something in the house, and it flashed into my mind that perhaps my trap had been sprung. I got out of bed and began rapidly to dress.

"What are you going to do?" anxiously asked my wife.

"I am going to see what has happened," said I. At that moment there was another noise. This was like two or three heavy footsteps, followed by a sudden thump, but it was not so loud as the others.

"John," cried my wife, "don't stir an inch, it's burglars," and she sprang out of bed and seized me by the arm.

"I must go down;" I said; "but there is really no reason for your being frightened. I shall call David, and shall carry my pistol, so there is really no danger; if there are thieves in the house they have probably decamped by this time, that is if they are able to do so. for of course they must know that noise would awaken the soundest sleepers."

My wife looked at me and then slowly withdrew her hands from my arm. "You promise me," she said, "if you find a burglar down-stairs in the possession of his senses you will immediately come back to me and George William? I promised her, and slipping on some clothes I went out into the second-story hall. I carried no light. Before I had reached the bottom of the back stairs I heard David, my man, coming down. To be sure it was he and not a burglar I spoke to him in a low voice, my pistol raised in case of an unsatisfactory roply. "I heard that voice, sir," he whispered, "and was going down to see about it."

"Are you ready if it's thieves?" whispered.

"I have got the biscuit-beater," he replied.

"Come on, then," said I, and we went down-striis. I had left no light in the library, but there was one there now, and it shone through the open door into the hallway. We stopped and listened. There was no sound, and then slowly and cautiously we approached the door of the library. The scene I beheld astounded me, and involuntarily I sprang back a step or two. So did David, but in an instant we saw that there was no need of retreat or defense. Stretched upon the floor, not far from the doorway, lay a tall man, his face upturned to the light of a bull's-eye lautern which stood by the mantel-piece. His eyes were shut, and it was evident that he was perfectly insensible. Near by, in the wreck of the small table, glasses and decenters, lay another man, apparently of heavier build. He also was as still as a corpse. A little farther back, half sitting on the floor, with the upper part of his body resting against the lounge, was another man with a black mask over his face.

"Are they dead?" exclaimed David, in an undertone of horror.

"No," said I, "they are not dead, they have been eaught in my trap

And I must admit that the consciousness of this created a proud evaltation of spirit within me. I had overmatched these rascals, they were prostrated before me. If one of them moved David and I could kill him. But I did not believe there would be any killing, nor any moving for the present.

In a high whisper which could have been heard distinctly all over the house my wife now called to me from the top of the stairs "What is it?" she said. "What has happened?"

I stepped quickly to the stairway. ' Every thing is all right." I said in a loud, distinct voice, intended to assure my wife that there was no necessity for caution or alarm.

"I will be with you presently." 'I am glad to hear that nothing is the matter," said Aunt Martha, now for the first time opening her door. 'I was airaid some thing had happened." But I had business to attend to before I could go upstairs. In thinking over and arranging this plan for the capture of burgles I had carefully considered its various processes, and had provided against all the contingencies I could think of therefore I was not now obliged to deliberate what I should do. ' Keep your eye on them," said I to David, and if one of them moves be ready for them. The last thing to do

I quickly lighted a lamp and then took from another shelf of the closet a large coil of strong cotton rope, which I Night after night 1 set my burglar had provided for such a rocession as the present.

"Now," said I to David, "I will fie say that I was exactly disappointed them while you stand by to knock over that no opportunity offered to test the any one of them who accompts to get

> The instrument with which Pavid was formidable one. In the days of my youth my family was very foul of "Maryland biscuit," which owes much of its delicacy to the fact that before baking it is pounded and beaten by a one kind of a beater and some another, but we had had made for the purpose a large and heavy at one end and a handle at the other. In my present household Maryland biscuit were never made, but I had preserved this iron beateras a memento of my boyhood, and when the burglaries began in our vicinity I gave it to David to keep in his room, to be used as a weapon if necessary. I did not allow him to have a pistol, having a regard for my own safety in a sudden night alarm, and nothing could be more formidable in a hand to hand encounter than this skull-crushing

I began with the tall man, and rapidly tied his feet together with many twists of the rope and many knots. I then turned him over and tied his elbows behind him in the same secure way. I had given so much thought to the best method of securing a man by cords that I do not think this fellow could possibly have released himself when I had finished with him.

David was obeying my orders and keeping a strict watch on the prostrate men, but his emotions of amazement were so great that he could not keep them down. "What is the matter with them, sir?"

he said. "How did they come so?"

"There is no time for talking now," I answered. 'I will tell you all about it when the men have been secured." I now turned my attention to the man who was partly resting against the lounge. I first tied his feet, and before latting him down to the floor, so as to get to his arms, I removed his hat and his mask, which was made of black muslin. I was surprised to see the beardless face of a young and very good-looking man. He was well dressed and had the general appearance of a person belonging to theatrical circles. When his arms had been tied I told David he might lay down his biscuit-beat r and help me with the third man, who was badly mixed up with the debris of the refreshments. We hauled him out and tied him up. He was rather a short man, but very heavy, and I could see no signs of his having been hurt by the smash-up he had made in falling. To be continued next usek.

GIORDANO BRUNO.

"A Liberal" Considers the Rev. Mr Canill's Last Sermon.

The following communication, receiv ed over a week ago, has not been published before, owing to the crowded condition of the columns:

Mr. Editor -To-day I am in receipt of a copy of the life of Gordano Brano; "his life, werth, martyrdom, portrait, and wonnment; with a complete list of the American subscribers to the fund for its erection. The pamphlet may be had of H. L. Green, publishers, Buffalo, N. Y. Single copies 15 cent-;ten copies for $1.00 to one address."

Brun is philosophical opinions, though they be!p to give breadth to the understanding, were not of as vi zr importance to maneind as the principles for which he endured statering and death, in the maintainance of truth and honesty, freedom of thought, freedom of conscience, freedom of opinion and freedom of speech the establishment and maintenance of which are of inestimable importance. We are told that had he renounced his any time up to within eight days of his death, he could have wasked out of prison, physically a free man. But Bruno was made of sterier stuff than Galileo. At Oxford he had said, in regard to his feachings, that they would be "an awakener of sleeping thought, a subduer of arrogant stupidity, a champion of the universal leve of mankind."

It was through the example of such spirits as he, his sublime courage, his fortitude, shot up within the dreary walls of a dungeon of the Inquisition, in darknes and alone, seven weary years, his tongue tern with pincers, but invincible to the last, to walk out finally to the frightful torture by a slow fire, to death, that the precious boon of liberty which we now in free America enjuy, was established.

Let all true Americans yield honor, love and reverence to his name. A LIBERAL.

Mr. Editor:—Since the foregoing was written, the Rev. Mr. Cahili's article in THE INDEPENDENT of the 24th has been read. A further account of Bruno's life may be seen in the July number of the Nine eenth Century of the current year, as well as in the above mentioned painphlet, which may be read and each person arrive at his own conclusion respecting the character and the influence of his teachings. And it is safe to say that, should a Bruno appear in cur day, be would neither be burned nor hung. And by this we may learn that the world, and we may hope even the Roman Catholic church, has made an advance in the right direction. Our respected neighbor who tells us that Bruno "was a toe to society, is himself a follower and minister of aim who attered the following: "Think not that I am come to send neare on earth I am come not to send beace, but is ord. For I am come to set a man at variance against his rather, and the daughter against her mother; and the daugt ter-in-law against her motherin law. And a man's foes shall be in his own hous hold." Matr. x, 34 36. Did Bruno ever say anything so creadful as that? It is as radical as any utterance of the mest furious anarchist. Then again, he sant: "We must believe or be enough to think and reflect for himself?

Unl ke Bruno, who was prebeian, Galileo was patrician born, though not to wealth, had an inheritance of intellect and to ish, Leightened by the best means of education of his day; and tre attraction between hims-If and the best society of the time, which was in or near the church, was mutual, and which, doubt less, had its ameliorating influence when he was brough within the toils of inquisi'ion. But after all, it was his recautation, more than his bearing or sprightly conversation, that made him a favorite again with the dignatures of the church, and that they had far less interest in the deductions of science than in the maintenance of the infallibity of scriptural teaching may be seen by the following: The ugh as prelimicary, it may be mentioned that on his first trial, in 1616, though be nad withdran this statement that the earth moves, seventeen years later, and thirty three, after the death of Bruno the influence of the rennaisance being felt over Europe, he ventured to publish a book, said to be of brithancy and literary merit, aside from its scien tific value, for which he was again brought before the court of the Inquisition, as follows: "The accusation against him was that be had written in contravention of the decree of 1616, and in denance of the command of the Holy Office, communicated to him by Cardinai Bellarmi, and his defense consisted mainly in a disavowal of his opinions and an appeal to his good intentions On the list of June be was examined, and under menace of torture; but he continued to mention his assertion, that after its condemnation by the Congregation of the Index, he had never he d the Copernican theory." Thus we see ti at while by this time perha s the church had come to consider the awfulness of burning a man for opinion's rake, she was as far as ever from a love of probing into the deductions of science See Encyclopedia Britannica).

Tanks Falling.

The local situation as regards the window glass industry is such, that the appended information from the Glass Budget, may be regarded as good news:

Our Belgian correspondent informs us that but few of the tanks are running in that c untry. Some of the firms that have experimented with tanks have failed and gone out of blast. Others are preparing to abandon tanks altogether, and are tearing them down so as to replace them with pot furnaces. Not less than sexteen pot furnaces are being put up around Charler i by men who have been experimenting with tanks. The day for large tanks in the window glass besitess are numbered among the things that were. Even when the tank fever was at its height, it will be remembered that those who were running tanks had some small pot furnaces from which to make their good glass.

ACRES OF DIAMONDS.

A Most Interceting Lecture by Russell Couwell.

The first lectrue of the season, of the People's lecture course, under the auspices of the Y. W. C. U. T., by Russell H. Conwell, entitled "Acres of Diamonds," was listened to Tuesday evening by a large and attentive audience at the People's hall.

Mr. Conwell opened his lecture by relating an oriental story of a truely Eastern character; a Persian farmer, beneath whose hillside home spread his own teeming acres, reaching to the rippling waters of the river Indus. Peace, plenty and contentment reigned over this man's broad dominions; but he had heard of diamonds, of the power their possession brought. His mind was filled with vain ambitious cravings, lust for wealth and power. His tranquility of mind and contentment gone, he sold his fields and with the money in his pockets, began his wanderings over the wide earth in search of the glittering jewels, which were to bring him ad the happiness his wild dreams had pictured. rie wander ed over Asia, Africa and into Europe on his fruitless search, and on the shores of the Medieterranean in Spain, money-less, a stranger and alone, his hopes and expectations unfulfilled, the last of earth faded forever from he- sight. In his own garden which he had sold, and left b-hind were found the diamonds he had craved for, and the famous mines of Gole anda were opened to the world The lecturer went on relating other stories of similar import from which the same moral was to be drawn, and which was, that we should not look abroad for diamonds, torgold, for nower, for breader fleids for existion, that we had all at home, though possibly undeveloped or overlooked; and that home was where we should make the best of our opportunities, give expension to our energies, develop our senses, improve and beautify our homes, our serroundings, our streets, our city, and above all, developthe best capabilities of a noble manhood.

Doubtless the lecturer felt all that he snoke with so mucic apparent feeling and energy, and he held his audience from the beginning to the end of his leature. Compare the influences of such a lecture as it at, with the influences of such an exhibition as was held at the same hour in the operations! On- may well bedeve that these lectures have come none
